JAMAICA PLAIN
FRIENDLY SOCIETY

ORGANIZED 1874

INCORPORATED 1901

ANNUAL REPORT, 1908-1909

JAMAICA PLAIN, MASS.

JAMAICA PLAIN FRIENDLY SOCIETY. 1908-1909.

The names of one hundred and fifteen applicants are on our records for the season of 1908-1909, a large portion of these being in need owing to illness. Almost one-third of the names are those of widows or deserted wives.

A number of tubercular cases have been reported to us which have required special supervision and assistance. In some of these cases, as last year, when money was needed for board at Rutland, or for transportation to and from the Day Camp, this has been furnished by the Jamaica Plain Dispensary.

The tubercular cases have also brought us in touch with the Social Service Committee of the Massachusetts General Hospital, the City Hospital for Consumptives, the Association for the Prevention and Cure of Tuberculosis, and other societies and hospitals. Some of these cases have required much summer care on the part of the visitors. One family, where the man was persuaded to go to the Day Camp at Mattapan, has required entire support for several months, there being a wife and several young children. Money was raised from friends for the summer rent, funds were furnished by the Provident Association for fares, the city gave regular supplies of groceries, other aid in food and clothing being given by the Jamaica Plain Dispensary and our Society.

The latest examination shows the man decidedly improved, and the doctor approves of his going to work, which he desires very much to do. Such improvement would not have been possible without the benefit of the Camp life for the man, and the relief from anxiety about his family.

As we look over the records of the last year, we find that most of our aid has been furnished to the sick and elderly people, and this we believe is as it should be. There are, of course, the widows with young children, to whom our sewing, and sometimes clothing, boots and shoes are given, and there are the cases where a man is out of work and temporary aid is needed.

One case of this sort may be mentioned. In January a German family was reported as in great need by a neighbor, a poor widow, who had been generously helping them herself. The visitor found a sick woman with a young baby, and four other children by a former marriage, only the oldest, a boy of twenty, being at work. The husband, a machinist and fireman, had lost his work through the shutting down of a factory, and he was walking through snow and slush for hours every day seeking another position. His inability to speak much English made his quest especially difficult. The family were suffering with cold and hunger in the severest part of the winter, and their rent was sadly behind. Food, fuel, and clothing were given to relieve the immediate needs. Then the visitor directed her efforts to finding work for the man. Through a friend a position as fireman was found in a factory a few miles away. The man soon proved his ability and earnestness, giving entire satisfaction to his employers. He had a promotion before long, and, later, a still higher position was found by one of his employers in an automobile shop. He has been doing well there in every way. Not long ago the story came of his saving this building from a conflagration by his presence of mind which involved injury to his hands, requiring hospital treatment for a time. No charity has been given to the family since the man obtained this position, and he has been gradually working his way out of the trials of last winter. It is sometimes thought that there is no need of a young, strong man being out of work, but, in this case, and in many others, we find that the interest and influence of a visitor or some good friend are quite important to give a man a start.

A different sort of work was needed for a respectable, single English woman in poor health. She had lost the little income upon which she had depended, and her great desire was to go to a Home. The visitor found that she had relatives in good position in England, and a correspondence was opened with one of these. The result was that sufficient money was added to the woman's small savings to enable her to enter a comfortable Home this summer. While waiting for these plans to be completed, the woman was helped by our Society with food and fuel.

To several elderly and delicate people and young children milk orders have been given.

To a young girl in delicate health milk and eggs were given for some time, then money was raised privately to give her several weeks at a seashore vacation house. Here she has gained in strength and health, so that she has been able to return to her work again.

These few cases, out of many, are mentioned to show the variety of work which comes to our visitors, and the importance of a central organization like ours to which societies, churches, and individuals may refer persons in this district to be investigated or aided. We, in our turn, refer many families to the churches or charitable societies to whose care they naturally belong. This co-operation is most important and helpful to all. The problems of intemperance and of desertion of families are always confronting us, and although we cannot always improve the conditions in such cases, we can and do use our efforts and influence to bring about a happier and better family life. Our sewing has been given to twenty-six women, a somewhat smaller number than last year, but to those who have had it, it has been a great help.

In December of 1908, by the burning of Curtis Hall, the Society lost the use of the room which had been furnished to us free of charge since 1874. Fortunately, none of the records were destroyed. Temporary quarters were offered in the Unitarian Parish House, and later a small room, for moderate rent, was obtained in the Masonic Building, 670 Centre Street. Our work has been done at some inconvenience, in these smaller quarters, but we are to remain there this winter. We hope for a room in the new Municipal Building when it is completed.

In closing, we wish to thank all who have helped this work in any way, and to ask for a continuance of the help and interest of all who have at heart the needs of the poor and unfortunate in this community.

More visitors and more money are always needed, but, also, we need the interest of all, and even the friendly word of criticism is a help. These give us courage to go on with this work which seems so important and necessary, and in which also we fully realize there is always opportunity for progress and improvement.

ELLEN C. MORSE,
For Case Committee.
